SUFFRAGISTS LOSE FIGHT FOR BALLOT

THE BOOM IS HERE

The Year 1914 Will See Portsmouth Take a Big Advancement.

The Herald Will Give You Some Interesting Facts.

Another industry is coming in Portsmouth and the details will be announced in The Herald within ten days. The promoters, (and they have the cash) were here on Thursday and it is going through. "Boom - Portsmouth," is certainly coming to be regarded as a fact. Some knockers have had more or less to say about "hot air," etc., but the fact is things are going to sweep the chief of knockers into the river before it is all over. Get aboard, take up The Herald's slogan and boost.

In less than two weeks The Herald will publish a story of "how one hundred more hands will be set to work here." It will also give the facts of a big factory scheme.

WANT THE MACHINE.

Kittery Firemen Negotiating for Handtub T. W. Priest.

Members of the fire department at Kittery are said to be negotiating for the purchase of the old handtub True W. Priest, which is in the hands of the Franklin Pierce Veteran Firemen's Association. If the Kittery fire fighters can secure possession of the machine they will put her in shape and go after some of the prize money at the musters. They can see a winner in the Priest, and if successful in getting control will find out just what the Firemen boys can do in a contest between the two tubs.

Amendment Providing Votes for Women is Killed in the Senate, the Vote Standing 35 for and 34 Against Adoption

Washington, March 19.—(Woman suffrage advocates today lost their fight in the United States senate for a resolution proposing an amendment to the federal constitution giving women the ballot.

The vote was 35 for the measure to 34 against it—a two-thirds affirmative vote being required for passage—and when it was all over suffragists leaders jubilantly pointed to the majority of one as conclusive proof that their cause had scored a triumph in defeat and was immeasurably stronger than its opponents had ever been willing to concede.

Today's action following weeks of debate during which many leaders in the suffrage movement pleaded for the postponement of the final vote marked the climax of a spirited campaign launched here the day before the inauguration of President Wilson.

The senators voting for the suffrage amendment were: Ashurst, Brady, Bristow, Burton, Chamberlain, Clegg, Clark (Wyo.), Gallinger, Gronna, Hollis, Hughes, Jones, Kenyon, La Follette, Lane, Lea, Myers, Nelson, Newlands, Norris, Owen, Perkins, Poindexter, Ransdell, Shafroth, Sheppard, Sherman, Smoot, Thomas, Thompson, Townsend and Works—35.

The senators voting against the amendment were: Bankhead, Borah, Bradley, Brandegee, Bryan, Catron, Dillingham, Du Pont, Gore, James Johnson, Lee (Md.), Lodge, McCumber, McLean, Martin, Murfrees, Oliver, Overman, Page, Pittman, Pomeroy, Reed, Shields, Smith (Ga.), Smith (Md.), Smith, (S. C.), Swanson, Thornton, Tillman, Vardaman, Weeks, West and Williams—34. Immediately and after the vote Senator Shafroth of Colorado sought to introduce a new resolution for a constitutional amendment requiring each state to vote on granting suffrage to women upon five per cent of its voters. The senate went into executive session before the senator could get the floor however, and the resolution will be offered later.

First One Presented

The resolution defeated today was the first introduced in the present session. It was presented by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon and the woman suffrage committee later authorized Senator Ashurst, to report it favorably.

Though otherwise the vote was virtually non-partisan, the senators, all against the amendment, they contend that it would complicate the negro question in the states. Of the southerners only Senator Dandridge of Louisiana, Sheppard of Texas and Lea of Tennessee voted for the resolution.

Senator Vardaman led a movement among the friends of woman suffrage in the south to repeal the 15th amendment to the constitution by which the states are prohibited from denying the right of negroes to vote. With the negro question removed he said he favored the granting of suffrage to women. His proposal was defeated by 48 to 19, and a proposition by Senator Williams to give the ballot to white women only was defeated by 44 to 21. The vote was preceded by a three hours kaleidoscopic debate on the various phases of suffrage.

Senator Martin of New Jersey was the only member who stated that he was opposed to women suffrage on (Continued on Page 6.)

KILLED TO END HIS SUFFERING

Prince, the Former Fire Department Horse, Is No More.

Prince, one of the pair of horses, formerly attached to the chuck wagon engine of the fire department was killed yesterday to end the suffering of the animal. The horse, since coming from the fire department has been in the street division of the public works and lately became affected with sore feet and other ailments. Prince was all that a horse could be since he became the property of the city and the long runs and hard pulls while in the fire department came against him in his last days. The board of public works could have disposed of him at a sale, but rather than take the chance of Prince getting into hands that might abuse him, the department ordered the faithful animal mercifully put to death.

While stationed at Hanover street for two years he was a genuine pet of the firemen and they missed him almost as much as a child, when taken to his last home in the city stables.

FIREMEN WILL CELEBRATE

Pig Barbecue By Men of Engine 2 on Next Tuesday Evening.

One of the events to go down in the social history of the fire department will take place on Tuesday evening next, when the men connected with Engine 2, on Court street, will celebrate. The fire fighters of the Col. Rice have been planning since the arrival of the engine back from the shops, to honor the occasion, and the committee in charge have made arrangements for a big barbecue. Members of the city council and the officers of the fire department will be special guests of the company. Several local speakers will also be seen and heard.

The Colonel Rice boys are noted for the fine feasts they spread during the winter months but the affair on Tuesday evening next, will eclipse all previous efforts on the part of the organization at entertaining.

SENT TO THE FARM.

Horse Will Figure in Coming Trial at April Term of Court.

One of the latest arrivals at the Rockingham County Farm at Brentwood as a boarder, not as a pauper, is a horse which was shipped up from this city on Thursday by County Solicitor Ernest L. Guptill. It is to be boarded here till the opening of the April term of superior court on April 21.

The equine figures in the litigation, and it is necessary that it be held till court time. It will share all the privileges that are given to the other boarders so the days ahead of the animal are filled with bright prospects. Just what will become of it after court is a matter of conjecture. It is probably the first time that a horse was ever sent to the farm.

ANNUAL INSPECTION.

Piscataqua Grange of Newington Receives Visit From Deputy Benjamin Pray.

The Piscataqua Grange of Newington held their regular meeting on Tuesday evening. Deputy Benjamin Pray conducted the annual inspection of the first degree, which was worked in an excellent manner.

There were over eighty present, nine other granges being represented by visitors and all passed a most delightful evening.

The decorations, literary and musical program, were suggestive of the day, also the supper of escalloped oysters, salads, rolls, cream cake, coffee fruit and desert. The color scheme of green and white predominated in place cards and souvenirs.

FIRE AT NEW CASTLE

Residence of John Pridham, Sr., Saved from Destruction.

The residence of John Pridham in New Castle had a narrow escape from being destroyed by fire this morning at eight o'clock. Some of the soldiers at the fort saw smoke coming from the windows. The blaze started in a clothes basket and was extinguished after lively work by the soldiers. Mrs. Pridham was the only one at home and she was unable to handle the fire when the men arrived. The damage was slight.

NAVAL TUG FOUND SAFE

One Party Reaches Potomac Still Fast in the Ice Near Belle Isle.

A dispatch from Curling, N. F., says that six men sent by Consular Agent Gould boarded the abandoned United States naval tug Potomac on Thursday after a trip of ten miles over land and sea ice. The Potomac was found five miles south of Point Belknap at the mouth of the Straits of Belle Isle, still frozen in the ice, her hull was apparently in perfect condition and there was very little water in her hold.

Another party with pumps and dynamite is on the way to the tug and an effort will be made to break up the ice and get her to a safe anchorage. She has about 12 tons of coal and a ton of provisions on board.

An easterly gale was blowing today and there were prospects that she would be blown out into the gulf again.

LIFE IN THE FAR EAST.

Interesting Lecture Given by Rev. Mr. Vinton at Middle Street Church.

The lecture given by Rev. Mr. Vinton, brought out a good house. His motion and still pictures of life in the Far East and the home land were very interesting. Among the scenes shown were the Indian snake dance, scenes on the East Side of New York, in Burma and in India. A motion picture of a baptism in Burma contrasted with a similar picture of worshippers in the Great Pagoda.

Mr. Vinton's lecture showed the progress made since Judson began work, 160 years ago in Burma, there now being 70,000 Christians.

He also spoke of work in our own land on the Eastern and Western frontiers, showing clearly the interdependence of home and foreign missions.

This educational tour among the churches is proving a most successful innovation and the local audience thoroughly enjoyed his presentation.

POLICE COURT.

Fines and costs aggregating $45.66 were imposed by Judge Torrey on Leslie Armstrong in the district court on Thursday afternoon as the result of a variety of offenses which occurred at his home on Cornwell street. He was taxed $15 and costs $5.76 for assaulting Dennis Mahoney, an aged man and $10 and costs of $9.15 for assault on Mattie B. Staples, his alleged wife. The third case was for a statutory offense, and a jail sentence of three months was imposed with costs of $5.62.

Mattie B. Staples, who Armstrong claimed he married in Dover, in court also. During the hearing City Clerk Kimby of Dover was heard and his testimony showed that there was no record that they were married in that city. Mattie had previous-

GEORGE B. FRENCH CO.

WANTS $60,000 FOR HIS BEARD

Washington, March 18.—What is the value of a beard?

That is the novel question which the learned justices of the Supreme Court have been asked to determine.

The case in point is that of E. A. O'Sullivan, aged about 66, and a prominent Louisiana lawyer, who placed a value of $60,000 on a growth of his beard.

O'Sullivan, who formerly was district attorney, State Senator and city attorney of New Orleans, claims that he was forcibly deprived of his beard on election day in November 1908.

On that day, he asserts, Paul Felix, a justice of the peace in the parish of Jefferson, La., and William H. Siles, a deputy sheriff, conspired to prevent Anthony Magliore, Michael Christina and a number of others from voting.

O'Sullivan claims he went to the polls to advise about the conduct of the election. He asserts that a number of men imported to the election place by Felix seized him and tied his arms to his side. Then, he claims, Siles seized his beard and with a pair of shears cut it off. In the scuffle O'Sullivan released one of his hands which was cut by the shears. In consequence of the ill-treatment and humiliation thus suffered O'Sullivan brought suit in 1911 for $60,000 damages under the Federal Civil Rights act.

He waited until his assailants had been convicted of assault before suing for damages. Felix and Siles now claim that the suit for damages was barred by the one-year Louisiana statute of limitations.

The Louisiana courts so held, but O'Sullivan has brought the case to the Supreme Court on the ground that the state statute of limitations has no application to a suit arising under a Federal statute.

THE DREAM CITY

Visitor's Impression of Fair Venice

Venice is the dream city of the world. You cannot imagine it before seeing it and after leaving it I think it must be hard to believe in its existence. Traveling, while probably the best brain stimulant and mind enlarger known, is apt to spell disillusion most of the time. Foreign places, after all, are amazingly like home; foreigners seem to be just plain human beings doing commonplace things in queer ways and the "wonders" we have anticipated with excitement from childhood dwindle doubtfully on being visited.

The only scenery I have found which exactly coincided with my previous fancy is in the Highlands of Scotland, and the only city thus far which has surpassed my fondest expectations is Venice.

In these days you usually enter a town by that most depressing of back doors, a railroad yard, hemmed about with dingy (traffic and squalid) buildings. Venice is approached, not through desolate wastes of "improved real-estate," not through the grime of manufacturing suburbs, but by a viaduct, across more than two miles of breezy sea on whose horizon seems to

W. S. JACKSON,

111 Market St., Portsmouth.

He some fair mirage in the form of a city—a jewel city set clean cut in water and light. Suddenly the sea is bottled from about you by a wall. You are in a railroad station.

"Just like other railroad stations," you may cynically say to yourself, and drift toward the exit to find a cab. You step forth and, presto! the dream begins—or at least it did for me. Of course, I have heard there were canals for streets and gondolas for transportation in Venice, but without just realizing what this meant. Here before me was a beautiful sweep of green water which I knew, by the handsome stone-fronted buildings that bordered it opposite, must be the Grand Canal. Here at my feet was a fleet of the most graceful small boats ever designed, long and black and narrow, each with the scintillar like sword of medieval Venice decking its prow, each with a gun-barrel, picturesquely dressed oarsman at its stern.

Quietly, with none of that clamor usual in Italy, I was motioned aboard one of these fairy craft, my baggage was stowed forward and I was propelled in silence through shadowy lanes of limpid water to my hotel, into the front door of which I stepped right from the gondola. For the arrival of a stranger in a strange city, it was all preposterously lovely. And I may say at once that after nearly a week here I am still tranquilly dazzled with the beauty of the place.

I have been reading what Theophile Gautier wrote about Venice over half a century ago. It seems to me there is little to change in his colorful pages. True, the gaily uniformed of the Austrian officers no longer mingle with the crowd, but what is far more important, so far as the picture is concerned, the Venetian women have not changed. They still have the reddish-brown hair which Titian painted and Gautier so admired. They still wear their graceful long fringed shawls.

I have heard people complain of smells and mosquitoes in this city, so perfect otherwise. I do not know how it is in summer, but in this month the only smell is of the salt sea, and that is a perfume. The mosquitoes too, are nearly all gone now, though one has still to sleep under a tent-like net. It seems quite impossible that in a world where compensation rules, there should be so little of the imp-like mingled with the fairy-like.

The nights are beautifully clear. I took a gondola, the better to enjoy the gleam of the lights on the water. Just off the Molo, where the Grand Canal widens into the Canale di San Marco, a barge of singers was anchored. Here, in the glow of sars and gondola lamps and Japanese lanterns, they sang choruses and boat songs and old serenades until even my grizzled gondolier, squinting sight he blind me, granted his approval. He must have been set dreaming of his youth—Paul Scott Mowrer, in Chicago News.

THE OLD T. D.

Day of the Clay Pipe Has Passed—But No Smoke Seems to Have Been More Enjoyed.—It Was Strong One and a Hot One Men Liked.

The clay pipe is passing. Perhaps it would be nearer the truth to write that the clay pipe has passed. It might be unsafe to prophesy that it will never come back, because the clay pipe when well used has a strength and persistency all its own.

The clay pipe was once the pet of laborer and the pride of the working-man.

That clay pipe was the pipe of men who did a man's work.

Can you not remember, and of course you can, that when a group of those real workmen gathered under the shade of a tree or the lee of a wall for lunch, that after the tin bucket had been emptied the strong man probably wiped his mouth with the back of his brawny hand, and that then he would produce a clay pipe, blacked with peck and fire? It had sometimes a very short stem. It was a hot smoke he sought and not a cool one.

Can you not remember with what loving care and deliberation he filled and patted the pipe with chips of tobacco he had whittled from a big black plug? Can you not remember how he lighted one of those blue-head sulphur matches and shielded it with his hairy hands, waiting for the flame to come clear and red? And then the content of such a smoke!

Watch the laborers of today and you will see that the majority of them are smoking wood pipes—briars, they call them—and that the younger workers are smoking cigarettes. So it is that the clay pipe is passing—has passed. But let a tobaccoist tell this story in his own way.

"Young man, you want a clay pipe? I don't have many calls for that kind of a pipe nowadays, except from children who want to blow soap bubbles, and from some folks who want to give a smoker and provide a box of clean clay pipes for their guests."

"Twenty, 30, 40 years ago I used to sell a great many of those pipes to smokers. The white clays, called T. D.'s, sold for a cent each. The yellow clays with the red stem sold for 2 cents each, and the red or the Powhatan sold for 10 cents for the bowl and 5 cents for the stem. But they had their run. Nearly every pipe smoker now calls for a briar, which, of course, is not really and truly a briar. Poor men want a hard rubber mouthpiece, a bone mouthpiece, an imitation amber mouthpiece. Just now there seems to be quite a run on specially prepared corn-cob pipes and calabashes, but nine out of ten pipes are made out of wood and the old-fashioned clay is not in the running."

"The red Powhatan of our youth was a fine pipe. It was cut out of a peculiar red pipestone in Virginia. One

Will Connery Buy Chicago Cubs? What'll Taft Get for the Team?

Chicago, March 20.—John C. Connery, a wealthy Chicago contractor, and Charles W. Taft, brother of former President Taft, are the principals in negotiations for the sale of the Chicago Cubs, which interests the fans the country over. Taft is credited with having purchased the club from Charles W. Murphy in February for over $500,000, following the action of the national baseball commission after the Evers deal. It is said that Connery is acting in behalf of himself and other rich Chicagoans in offering to buy the club from Taft. The outcome of the matter is awaited with interest.

family made them for the market for many years. Some pipe-makers began to imitate them by molding them out of red clay. The real Powhatan when it became full could be burnt out and would be pure and sweet, but the clay Powhatan would crack."

The clay pipe early attained great popularity in England and Ireland. It is believed that the first tobacco pipe was taken into England by Ralph Lane, first governor of Virginia, in 1585. He gave this pipe to Sir Walter Raleigh. It was the pipe which set the tobacco smoking fashion in England. The pipe-making industry boomed so prosperously that in 1615 there was a guild of pipe-makers in London.

Though these English pipes were made from a number of substances, the clay pipe was widely smoked. There were great clay pipe-making factories at Broseley in Staffordshire and at Amsbury in Wiltshire in the 17th century. The clay was pressed into iron molds with a wire through the stem, which was drawn out before baking. The pipes were "fired," but so lightly that the clay remained quite soft and porous. Pipes were made not only of clay, but of wood, horn, bone, stone, amber, glass and porcelain.

In the East, especially in China and Japan, pipe bowls were made of brass. The porcelain bowl with the long penicillate stem became the favorite pipe of the German peasantry, and in Turkey the red clay bowl with the cherry stem came to be the pipe of the people. American pioneers very commonly made their pipes by burning the pith out of a corn cob and inserting a reed stem.

American Indians had been smoking tobacco in pipes for unknown ages before the coming of Europeans. Pipes are found in the Indian burial mounds throughout the Mississippi Valley, and a great many of these pipes are to be seen in museums. Many of the old Indian pipes were made from red pipe-stone, and a quarry of this, thought to have been worked by Indians in days prior to the advent of the whites, exists in the country west of the Big Stone Lake in South Dakota. Baked clay pipes have also been found among early Indian relics and ancient clay pipes have been found in Mexico.

Many Indian pipes taken from Indian graves are carved in porphyry or hard stone.

Pipes of iron and bronze have been found among the ruins and relics of classic Rome. They may have been used in burning incense to the gods, and it may be that the people then had the habit of smoking fragrant herbs or hemp. There are writers who have printed the opinion that the smoking of tobacco was known in the Orient centuries before mariners of Europe began to concern themselves with the question of reaching India by sailing west.

Very few smokers know much about the briar pipe. The best "briar" is cut from the root of a tree—the arica arborea—a member of the heath family, which grows in France and Italy. But the old clay pipe has passed.—Washington Star.

96,000 OUT OF WORK

New York, March 19.—Reports just submitted to Mayor Mitchell by police capturing in every precinct of New York city, showing that there are 96,000 persons out of work are in direct contradiction to the statements of Representative James H. Mann, made during a debate in Washington that the number of unemployed was 300,000. Mr. Mann's figures he explained were based on reports from charitable organizations.

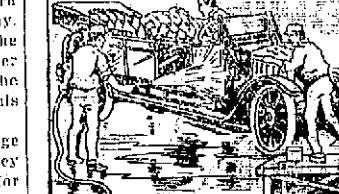

The canvass was made at the request of the federal bureau of labor, and required two weeks. While the number found to be out of employment is far less than the estimates by many authorities it includes what are known as seasonal workers. Among these are the outdoor building trades, of which it is estimated there are 40,000 out of work in New York city every winter.

The report also includes the transient trades, such as sailors, circus and theatrical employees and others on wages in similar vocations, of which there is a great number of unemployed at practically any time of the year.

WASHING POLISHING

These parts do an immense amount of work in propelling your car—they transmit the engine's power to the rear axle—consequently they wear and need expert attention at least every year to take up the wear and replace worn and weak parts.

If your car seems to "gather itself together" before it moves instead of starting as a unit you should have us overhaul these parts now—something is worn and loose and is sure to break at the wrong moment. Let us overhaul your car this month—and have it in good shape for the new season.

CREW DROWNED IN A COLLISION

Bremen, Ger., March 19.—An unknown three-masted schooner was sunk and the whole of her crew were drowned through a collision last night in the North Sea with the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

The steamer remained in the vicinity for two hours, but could discover no trace of the schooner's crew. She resumed her voyage to America.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse left Bremen yesterday on her first trip since her reconstruction as a third-class and steering-passenger vessel. The captain sent the news of the collision in a wireless message to the company here.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Brush This Through Faded, Lifeless Locks and They Become Dark, Glossy, Youthful

Hair that loses its color and lustre or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of colour in the hair. Our grandmothers made us a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair, which is so attractive use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture at any drug store by asking for a 50 cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, which drenches the hair so naturally, so evenly that it is not possible to tell that it has been applied. Besides it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that after a few applications it acts that besides beautifully darkening the brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

N. H. LUMBERMEN ELECT OFFICERS

Manchester, March 19.—The New Hampshire Lumber Dealers' association will carry the matter of returns of "egg stakes" to the interstate commerce commission. At the annual meeting held this morning at the offices of Thorpe & Abbott on the ninth floor of the Amoskeag high building, the association vigorously discussed the new attitude of the Boston and Maine railroad relative to the furnishing of wire for use on lumber rail cars.

The stakes which brought about the discussion are the stakes which are used on the sides of flat cars to hold the lumber in place and the wire in question is that which is used to bind the logs of the stakes together and thus hold the lumber load down on the car.

Up to within a few weeks it was the custom for the lumbermen to furnish their own stakes; then, after the lumber had reached its point of destination and had been unloaded, the stakes were hauled up and sent back to the shipper, free of cost. Lately the railroad has been charging for this return, and also a good stiff price for the wire, which it formerly furnished at cost.

The Boston & Maine, through its general solicitor, E. J. Rich, claims that it is up to the interstate commerce commission this being one of that tribunal's rulings. The New Hampshire association will take the matter to the commission, with a view to determining just what can be done.

The meeting was well attended on account of the fact that lumbermen everywhere are taking advantage of the snow while it lasts, opening up the forests are being rushed as fast as possible just now. Among those who were present were S. B. Chantwick of Franklin, W. A. Kemp of East Pepperell, Mass., Charles S. Hall of Boston, James B. Tennant of Concord, formerly president of the association, S. P. Langdon of New Boston, Fred M. Pettengill of Suncook, H. E. Bailey of Suncook, Benjamin F. Worcester and William H. Maxwell.

The old board of officers was re-elected as follows: President, Irving H. Chase of Plymouth; vice president, John Walker of Newmarket; clerk and treasurer, L. Ashton Thorpe of Manchester; directors, James B. Tennant of Concord, the Hon. Samuel D. Felker of Rochester, James G. Pelletts of Suncook, Frank H. Clark of Dover, Charles A. Bailey of Suncook.

The association was informed of the death at his home in Brookline, Mass., of David O. Ives, manager of the transportation department of the Boston chamber of commerce, and the secretary was instructed to take appropriate notice of the same.

It was voted to hold a meeting in June, either at a sanatorium resort or at some inland point, in which a member of the National Lumber Dealers' association should be invited to be present.

NORTHERN REBELS PLAN AN AGGRESSIVE ADVANCE

Juarez, Mexico, March 19.—A simultaneous attack of Rebels on Torreon and Mazatlan, was predicted in advance received today. It was said that while Gen. Villa's army was moving against Torreon, forces under Gen. Alvaro Obregon would assault Mazatlan. Obregon was reported to be moving 12,000 troops against the Pacific Coast port.

This was said to be part of a general plan for an aggressive movement against all Federal forces in northern Mexico.

The fall of Mazatlan, it was said, would mean virtual control of the west coast, while the capture of Torreon the railroad center of Central Mexico, would threaten the capital. If the Rebels capture these two points, both armies, it is said, will move against Guadalajara, which is the strategic key to the south.

According to the plans, Guaymas would be ignored in hopes that the California Gulf port might fall with the capture of Mazatlan.

It was said that the simultaneous movements against Torreon and Mazatlan had received the sanction of Gen. Carranza, now riding overland to Chihuahua.

VERGARA WAS DECEIVED

Testimony of Daughter of American Citizen About Her Father's Murder is Received.

Austin, Tex., March 19.—The sworn statement of Dolores Vergara, daughter of Clemente Vergara, telling what she knew of the murder of her father by the Mexican Federalists and describing the circumstances of his capture as witnessed by her, has just been received by Gov. Coziqui and will be added to the evidence which he is accumulating regarding every detail of the Vergara case. The girl's story, pathetic in its simplicity, follows:

"My name is Dolores Vergara. I am a daughter of Clemente Vergara and was born at Palafax, Webb County, Tex., and reside at the said place. My father used the island in the Rio Grande known as Grand Island, or Big Island (Isla Grande), which is opposite the mouth of San Pedro Creek, as a pasture for horses and cattle there.

"On the morning of Feb. 12 Mr. Smecker came to our house about 9 and told me that he had seen the Federalists cross our horses from the island in the Mexican side of the river. As my father was not at home, I sent Almedia Salda to Palafax to tell my father what Mr. George Smecker had told me.

Eleven Horses Were Stolen.

"While I was sending the boy to Palafax I saw men on the opposite side of the Rio Grande, the Mexican side, driving the horses toward Hidalgo. I am positive that these horses, which I recognized as ours, had been taken from the Texas side of the river. There were 11 horses in the bunch.

"That night my father said we would go to Laredo the next morning to meet my mother, who was expected from San Antonio. On Friday, Feb. 13 after the buggy was hitched up, my father was branding some calves when three men called to him from the opposite side (the Mexican side) My father and Marcelo Vallarreal left the house and went toward the river. The next time I saw them they were right in front of the ranch, in a skiff on the Mexican side of the river.

"A few minutes after I had seen them in a skiff on the Mexican side, Juanito del Rio, Jesus Maria in Cruz and Cecilio Guayarra came to the house and told me that the Federalists were heading my father, and I ran with these people to the river bank. I called to my father to come back to his side.

"There were three men in this party all mounted, and two of them were riding my father's buggy horses. These men made my father walk before them and they went toward Hidalgo. I knew my father was unarmed because he owned no pistol.

"Saw Wounded Father in Barracks. "My mother arrived in Alameda on the train on the 18th, where I met her. My mother and I, accompanied by Cecilio Guayarra, left at 4, or about midnight on Feb. 18, and my mother and I crossed the Rio Grande early on the morning of the 14th at Palafax, Tex.

and proceeded to Hidalgo, Mex., where we went to the barracks and saw my father. He was confined in a room in the barracks with a guard at the door.

"My father had two cut places on his head, a cut on his nose and a bruise on the left side of his face. The wounds had never been dressed, and the blood was still clotting in the hair. His clothes were bloody. We were not allowed to talk with him about what had happened. We remained with my father until 10 that night.

"We saw and talked with Apolinario Rodriguez when we were in Hidalgo, and also saw and recognized all our horses, which were in the corral. My mother and I stayed all night the night of Saturday, Feb. 14, with friends in Hidalgo.

"Early the following morning before we had gotten up, a Federal soldier came to the house and gave us the baskets and bedding which we had taken across the river, and informed us that Capt. Apolinario Rodriguez had sent my father to Piedras Negras. My mother and I went as soon as we were dressed to the barracks to see Apolinario Rodriguez, and were informed that he was not there.

"We then left Hidalgo and crossed the river at Palafax. I have not seen my father alive since 10 on the night of Saturday, Feb. 14, nor have I seen any of the horses since that time."

City of Mexico, March 19.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon, Mexican Federal commander at Piedras Negras, in his report to the ministry of government of the Federal Government of the "reported execution" of Clemente Vergara, said that Vergara was a "bandit by profession," and that he was captured by the Federalists, but escaped. The Mexican General is bitter against Texans along the border, who he believes aid the rebels, and Vergara probably met his death because the Federalists believed he had furnished arms and equipment to the revolutionists. The report was as follows:

"I have the honor of informing you that there is no truth in the report that an American citizen has been executed in Hidalgo. Clemente Vergara, a bandit, who revolts himself to joining across the frontier arms and ammunition for the Rebels of this region, was captured and the chief of the Federal detachment of Hidalgo had sent him toward Piedras Negras. Vergara took advantage of the consideration with which he was treated and managed to escape on the road, joining a force of bandits which was near, and which made away in the direction of Rosales. "The American Citizen in Nuevo

OUCH! PAIN, PAIN. RUB RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is "pain, pain." Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop! Stop! Rub something penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" directly upon the "tender spot," and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a marvelous rheumatism cure which never disappoints and can not burn or discolor the skin.

Linger up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling. Don't suffer! Relief and a cure await you. "St. Jacobs Oil" has cured millions of rheumatism sufferers in the last half century, and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.

Laredo telegraphed today to the American Consul in Piedras Negras, stating that he had been in Hidalgo and that he had seen Vergara, who had been shot and hanged. I can assure you that this is false. I have talked lengthily with Alaj. Garza Galan, chief of the detachment of Hidalgo, whom I had summoned for this purpose, and I deduced that the consuls are looking for ways of making trouble for our Government.

"Among the Texas towns bordering upon the river the people are really hostile to the elements of our Government and their toleration and protection are equally open for the Rebel elements which are organized on the American side, sometimes as bandits but more often as entire thieves, who sell their animals brazenly in all parts of the States. Tex. Just across from Hidalgo, there is a bank of 18 bandits which is prepared to aid the crossing of a large drove of stolen cattle. The chief of this gang is Vergara, a bandit by profession."

An Interesting Experiment.

Governor Glynn's plan to solve to some extent the problem of un-employment in New York City and at the same time assist the farmers of the state in securing needed help is interesting, but it is to be doubted that it will prove as practicable as could be desired. The plan is to gather the unemployed, men and women, and ship them to the rural districts, where they will be distributed among the farmers as hired men and domestics.

The work has already been begun and, as was to have been expected, it occasions considerable interest in the city. Without doubt this is due to a considerable extent to its novelty. It is a new thing. It affords an opportunity for men who know little or nothing about farm work to make an excursion into the country, where, whatever happens, they will be well fed and given an opportunity to try their hand at the homely and hard tasks of the farm, of which many of them are as ignorant as they are of Latin. To be sure, there are among them some sturdy foreigners who have had experience in tilling the soil, and these will prove valuable help, but it is to be feared that the inexperience of the majority will render the experiment a disappointment to them, to the homes to which they are sent and to the well-meaning executive who has devised this plan as a means of relieving a troublesome situation at both ends of the line.

One of the greatest mistakes of those unfamiliar with agriculture is the belief that a farm hand does not necessarily need to know much. They think if a man has big muscles he is equipped for farm work, but this is not the case by any means. Physical strength is a desirable thing on the farm, where there is constant and abundant opportunity for its profitable exercise, but something more is needed. A good farm hand must not only like his work, but he must have had experience. The farmer has to know how to do more different kinds of work than do men in any other occupation. He must be at home with the horses, the cows and other farm animals, knowing how to feed and handle them properly; he must be familiar with the use of an almost infinite variety of tools and implements, and he must be willing to pursue the daily task without stopping to reflect on the desirability of short hours and big pay, neither of which is enjoyed on the farm by the employees or the proprietor himself.

These are among the things that the New York contingent will learn if it stays on the farms for any length of time. And it is to be feared that by the time it is learned most of them will be back in the city.

Things happen where women vote and hold office. Mrs. John Larsen, mayor of Portland, Ore., has caused the arrest of her husband on the charge of selling liquor to minors. She admits that she did not expect to catch her husband in the dragnet that had been spread for violators of the liquor law, but says if he is guilty he will have to "take his medicine with the others." It would certainly look bad if he didn't.

There have been many and varied comments on the action of Dr. James Devan, a Glasgow prison commissioner, who knocked down with his fist a suffragette who attacked him with a dog whip, but the case is most succinctly summed up by an exchange that pronounces him Scotland's "White Hope."

American baseball evidently stirred deeply the sporting blood in King George, who has since witnessed a public exhibition of the "manly art of self-defense." He is the first reigning British monarch to do this, and his action is expected to give new impetus to the boxing game in England.

It is predicted that the talked-of round-the-world aeroplane race in connection with the Panama-Pacific exposition will actually be attempted. Well, suppose it is. Wasn't there once an attempt to reach the North Pole by flying machine?

The keel of another great battleship has been laid. If these monster fighting machines are a guaranty of peace the United States should be reasonably immune from the dangers and horrors of war.

The Paris authorities say that Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the American artist who has recently been in trouble there, is half insane. And everybody knows what the matter is with the other half.

Villa says he does not aspire to the presidency of Mexico, and he calls those who say he does liars with an emphasis that has been considered in some quarters a prime presidential requisite.

Spring has had one decided setback and there will probably be others, nevertheless it is coming right along in spite of them all.

Wireless holds its own as the greatest life saver at sea, and bids fair to do so through all the years to come.

CURRENT OPINION

Red Light Dramas and Moving Picture Films Have Greatly Exaggerated Bad Social Conditions.

Sex education has nothing to do with red light drama or moving picture films of white slavery. This commercial exploitation of sex has unfortunately moved parallel with our plan of sex study in the schools, which was intended to be an outgrowth of the study of biology.

This false theatrical view across the footlights is not educational. It has spoiled our efforts. Early movers in sex education have tried "to make people sit up and take notice" by calling attention to the social evil and to white slavery. The conditions have been exaggerated, and today educators are emphasizing other sides of the question.

The word "sex" has fallen into disfavor through a mistaken notion of its meaning. It carries a sinister significance in the mind of the general public because it came into common usage at a time when much was and still is being said and written on white slavery and crime of the kind.

As a matter of fact, however, from seventy-five to ninety per cent. of the instruction which we are advocating is already included in the courses of our schools. The problems of sex hygiene, either personal or social, should be approached gradually and unobtrusively by way of the nature study of the elementary schools, the biological courses of the high schools and colleges and the course of general hygiene in all these types of educational institutions.—Dr. Maurice A. Bigelow, Professor of Biology in Teachers' College, Columbia University.

BRAKEMAN CAUSES ALARM

Mitchell Is Found at Doctor's House at Old Orchard.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of John W. Mitchell, aged 23, of 164 Glen street, Somerville, Mass., a freight brakeman on the Portland division of the Boston and Maine railroad was solved when the missing man was found in bed at the home of Dr. A. Leon Jones on Staples street, Old Orchard.

When an extra freight train from Boston to Portland reached Old Orchard Beach at 12:15 Wednesday morning the brakeman who was about to descend a ladder on a caboose, was snatched from the top of the car as the engineer suddenly applied the emergency brake. Mitchell was thrown to the ground and rendered unconscious.

Conductor Henry W. Smith did not miss his brakeman until Portland was reached, and then he reported the fact to the train dispatcher in Boston. An extra was sent from Portland to Old Orchard to search for the brakeman. No trace of him was found by the searchers.

Conductor Smith and trainmen went to Old Orchard on an express at 5 a. m. Thursday. They walked along the track in the direction of Staples street and found the car and lantern of Mitchell beside the track. There was a pool of blood and tracks showing where the man had made his way up the track.

Later in the forenoon the mystery was solved, when Mitchell was found at the office of Dr. A. Leon Jones, a short distance from the Boston and Maine passenger station. He was suffering from a scalp wound, a sprained shoulder and cuts and bruises. He is in bed and will not be able to return to his Somerville home for a day or two.

Mitchell says that when he regained consciousness he was numb from the cold and feared that if he laid beside the track the remainder of the night he would perish.

He managed to crawl to the caboose track as he supposed, and fastened a torpedo to the rail intending to stop an express from Boston soon due. In his dazed and bewildered condition however, he fastened the torpedo to the rail of the west-bound track and the train whizzed by at a high rate of speed. He later managed to reach the station, crawling part of the way, but found no night operator there. He then made his way to a hotel, where he was told the way to Dr. Jones' office which he reached about two o'clock on Thursday morning.

AFTER SICKNESS OR OPERATION

It is a pathetic mistake to accept drugs or alcoholic mixtures when nature craves nourishment to repair the wasted body and restore the vigor of health.

For forty years the best physicians have relied on the wholesome predigested nourishment in SCOTT'S EMULSION which is totally free from alcohol or opiates.

Scott's Emulsion sharpens the appetite—renews blood—nourishes nerves—strengthens bones and restores the courage of health to make life bright.

Scott's Emulsion sets in action the very forces that promote health. Its purity, richness and strength has stood the test of forty years.

MILK PRODUCERS ASK INCREASE

Reach Agreement of 33 Cents for 8½ Quart Can in Summer Months.

The directors of the New England Milk Producers' Association after careful investigation of milk conditions in Boston and having consulted the producers through the local branches of their organization, have agreed to ask the contractors a very low price for milk supplied the market this morning. They demand 33 cents for an eight and one-half quart can delivered to the railroad station or a little less than four cents a quart. Last year the price received was 31 cents. Statistics of the most reliable sort and the experience of all dairymen show that it costs as much to make milk during the summer six months as during the rest of the year. The farmers are now getting 40 cents a can and have offered to accept 7 cents less during the summer, thus taking upon themselves the extra expense of handling milk in the summer months.

The middlemen get as much in summer as in winter, yet the farmers get about a cent a quart less, the difference making thousands of dollars for the contractors above the small additional expense of milk handling in summer time.

The following letter has been sent to the Boston milk contractors by Secretary Richard Patton of the association:

"Acting for the milk producers of New England the directors of the New England Milk Producers' Association wish to say that the price to be received by the farmers for the six months, beginning April 1, 1914, should average not less than 33 cents an eight and one-half quart can for the middle zone, other zones in proportion. The farmers are united in demanding this extremely conservative price.

We are willing to refer the question of what is a fair and reasonable price for the producers to receive to the Boston Chamber of Commerce whose decision, after thorough investigation, we agree to accept.

"This letter is sent to all the Boston contractors in the expectation of early and favorable action in agreeing to its demands."

The producers state that they want only a fair and reasonable price at any time for their milk and claim that at the price paid they hardly break even.

It costs according to all the authorities nearly a cent a quart more to make milk than the farmers get for it. The producers point to the statement that they are willing to leave to the Boston Chamber of Commerce, what is a fair and reasonable price for the farmers to get as an evidence of their good faith in the matter.

NEW CASTLE

To sing even the feeblest poem of praise of the brand of weather we have been enduring for the past week would need the optimism of a Mark Twain. Everybody in the Island town was wearied with the stretch of fog, mist, rain, cold and other meteorological mixtures.

We take renewed courage with the thought that tomorrow Spring becomes an astronomical fact. We may doubt the reality as indicated by our physical senses, nevertheless, as the sun crosses the line we pass from the season which we call winter into that which we call spring. But let us hope that the elements have now ceased their friskiness and had temper and that henceforth mankind may watch the lengthening days with secure consciousness of the presence of a new season.

WORTH KNOWING.

The Seven Bibles of the World are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, the Try Pikes of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindus, the Zendavesta, and the Scriptures of the Christians. The Koran is the most recent of these seven Bibles, and not older than the seventh century of our era. It is a compound of quotations from the Old and New Testaments, the Talmud and the Gospel of St. Barnabas. The Eddas of the Scandinavians were first published in the fourteenth century. The Pikes of the Buddhists contain sublime morals and pure aspirations, and their author lived and died in the sixth century before Christ. There is nothing of excellence in these sacred books not found in our Bible.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

With the forthcoming week, the season of the Boston Opera Company ends, and with it performances of opera in Boston end for nine months, as the Opera House will not re-open until January 4 next. The week will bring forth bills that will awaken the interest of the public, and show the company at its most versatile best; as the subscription performances of the week will consist of a classic and a modern opera of both the French and Italian schools; the Saturday night offering will be a "mixed" bill; and on Tuesday, two special performances, of "Hansel and Gretel" and of "Tosca" will be given in New Haven.

The week will be begun with a concert on Sunday evening, March 22, which will present Jan Kubelik, violinist, and Mme. Weingartner, soloist, with Mr. Weingartner directing the orchestra.

"Louise," one of the most justly popular operas of the French repertory, will be given its last hearing of the year. The cast will number three principals, as yet unheard in the Chaperier opera this season: Mme. Marguerite Beriza, who will take the title role for the first time in America, Mme. Gay, who will be the Mother; Mr. Zenatello, the Julien; and Mr. Marcoux will again be heard and seen in his penetrating and moving study of the Father, probably one of the most impressive characterizations to be seen anywhere on the lyric stage. Andre-Caplet will conduct, for the last time this season. The performance will begin at 7.45.

"Aida" will be sung on Wednesday night, with the same splendid cast that presented it so nobly on Saturday. Mme. Lucille Weingartner as Aida, Mme. Gay as Amneris, Mr. Zenatello as Radames, and Mr. Ancona as Amnassaro; with Mr. Weingartner conducting. Verdi's spectacular and brilliant music-drama will thus be given a final performance in every respect worthy of it.

The performance of "Faust" on Friday evening will be a notable occasion; in the first place, it will bring forward Mme. Weingartner and Mr. Marcoux in roles in which they are altogether too little known. Again it will be the farewell of the Weingartners and of Mr. Marcoux. The cast will include Mme. Weingartner as Marguerite, Mme. Swartz-Morse as Siebel, Mr. Marcoux as Faust, Mr. Marcoux as Mephistopheles, and Mr. Danges as Valentin; with Mr. Weingartner directing.

On Saturday afternoon, "The Jewels of the Madonna" will be sung, fittingly closing the subscription performances of the year, as it began them. Miss Elizabeth Amisen will be the Mallela, a role which she assumed at one of the extra-subscription performances of the Wolf-Ferrari opera, earlier in the season. Mme. Gay will impersonate Carmella, Mr. Zenatello, will be the Gennaro, and Mr. Ancona, the Raffaele; with Mr. Moranzoni conducting.

On Saturday evening, a "gala" bill will be presented. First, "The Secret of Suzanne," Wolf-Ferrari's charming one-act opera, will be sung by Miss Myrta Shulow, and Mr. Fornari, with Mr. Rimini conducting. The second act of "Faust" will follow, with Mme. Beriza as Marguerite, Mr. Laffite as Faust, and Mr. Luditar as Mephistopheles; Mr. Tournon conducting. Then will follow the third act of "Tales of Hoffmann," with Mme. Beriza as the Antonia, Mr. Danges as the Doctor Mllele, and Mr. Dery as Hoffmann; with Mr. Strony directing. To close the evening's entertainment, the delightful ballet, "The Dance of the Hours," from "La Cigomada," will be presented by the entire corps de ballet of the Opera House, with a solo dance by Miss Dolores Gail; Mr. Schiavoni conducting.

ESCAPES TRIAL BY ENDING LIFE

John Boody of Henniker Breaks From Keeper and Plunges Into River.

John A. Boody, 70 years of age, of Henniker, who was arrested Wednesday night by Constable J. E. Marshall on a statutory charge, broke away from his keeper Thursday night about 7 o'clock and committed suicide by throwing himself from the stone bridge across the Contoocook river into the rapids, 18 feet below.

Since the arrest of Mr. Boody, he has shown plainly that he felt the disgrace of the misdemeanor against him and it is believed that it weighed so heavily upon him that his mind be-

James Gordon Bennett, Famous International Newspaper Owner.

When the report reached the United States that James Gordon Bennett, famous newspaper owner, had been taken suddenly and critically ill on his private yacht, the Stratford, at Suez, it was widely felt. Mr. Bennett had been the New York Herald, one of the best known newspapers in the world, from his father. He became managing editor and executive head in 1883 and took over the entire control when his father died in 1872. Mr. Bennett was born in New York city in 1811. He never married. He lived most of the time in later years in Paris, where he published a European edition of his paper. His first great piece of newspaper enterprise was the founding of Robert M. Stanley to darkest Africa to find Robert Livingstone. This is a picture of Mr. Bennett in his prime.

Because of the former good reputation of the victim and also because of his advanced age, it was not thought best to confine him in the town jail and consequently a keeper, Constable Marshall, was placed over him until the case was disposed of in court.

Tonight Mr. Marshall and his charge went to the Nichol's house for supper and throughout the meal it was noticed that Mr. Boody was even more morose than at any time before.

When the meal was over the constable and his prisoner went to the street and just as they emerged from the hotel, Boody called attention of the constable to some imaginary object on the farther side of the street. When the constable's attention had been drawn away from him, the old man made a dash as rapidly as his age would permit toward the stone bridge. He succeeded in reaching it only a few feet ahead of the keeper, but the distance was sufficient, for before hands could be laid upon him, he jumped to his death in the rapids below.

The Contoocook at this point runs very rapidly and the body failed to appear after it was submerged. The ice is usually formed a few feet below and there is no doubt but that the body was carried underneath before life was extinct.

Constable Marshall summoned aid and a heroic effort was made to get the body, but up to a late hour tonight, all efforts had been unsuccessful.

About 60 rods farther down the river, there is a dam, and a considerable back flow, and a large gang of men are watching the falls and others are stationed at intervals along the rapids.

Mr. Boody has resided in the town for the last 20 years. He is survived by two daughters, one of whom lives in Rochester and the other in some city in the south.

FIGHT LOOKED FOR IN ULSTER

Government May Take Military Occupation of Province.

London, March 20.—Grave events are pending in Ulster, according to the Ulster newspapers, and a rumor is current that the government is preparing for the military occupation of the province. There are various indications that a crisis has been reached.

A vote of censure on the British government which has moved in the house of commons yesterday by Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, was rejected, 345 to 252.

Arthur J. Balfour, summoned by Mr. Bonar Law, made a hurried return from the Riviera and arrived in London in time to participate in the division.

There were reports also of the threatened arrest of Sir Edward Carson and other leaders of the Ulster Unionists, but it was officially declared that there was no truth in the statement that warrants had been signed for such arrest. Sir Edward Carson, however, made a dramatic exit from the house before the debate was concluded to catch a train for Belfast.

Arthur Chamberlain declared last night that Sir Edward had been called away in response to sudden developments in Ireland.

Other Unionists asserted that the Ulster men can no longer be restrained from an outbreak and that Sir Edward's mission is to endeavor to hold them in check.

The Daily Telegraph's lobbyist says:

"Unless all rumors are false blood will be spilt in Ulster before the house of commons sees Sir Edward Carson again."

The Marquis of Londonderry and other prominent Ulstermen are now on their way to Belfast and their action is regarded as a challenge to the government. It is asserted, any intention exists to issue warrants for their arrest.

The view of both Liberal and Unionist morning papers is that after yesterday's debate all chances for settlement by consent are ended and the home rule bill will be passed in its original form.

It is said that the government has assured the Nationalists leader that Mr. Bonar Law's referendum offer will not be accepted.

He declared the participation of women in politics had failed to purify the ballot, and that it would be a bad day for both women and men when they were given the ballot universally.

The speeches of suffrage senators, he added had excited in his mind the wonder if they found objection to the "Savious for not choosing six of the apostles from among the women."

Senator Gillingham declared it would be a crime to repeal the 15th amendment, even if it were a blunder to have passed it. Senator Townsend insisted it was no blunder to have passed it, and added it was not necessary to do justice to the negro in order to do justice to the women.

Senator Newland declared that he was in favor of making this a white man's country so as to shut out the Japanese as well as the negro but questioned the propriety of doing that on a woman suffrage proposition.

Mrs. Alfred Mc Cormick, chairman of the congressional committee of the National American Woman Suffrage Association issued a statement tonight claiming the majority vote as a victory.

"For the first time in fifty years" she said "the women of America demonstrated their impression upon the United States senate. It is a sign of the times and it portends that all womanhood in this country will be emancipated in this generation."

INCOME TAX PUZZLES.

Corporation Spends $13 to Pay $3, and Called Illegal.

A little gas company had $5,000 interest to pay on December 1, 1913, on $200,000 of bonds which were issued "tax free." After all the certificates and coupons came in the treasurer found he had to "deduct and withhold" the tax on $150 worth of coupons, all the rest being accompanied by certificates claiming exemption. So Uncle Sam was entitled to $150 tax. There is no reason to expect any material difference in the next batch of coupons, due June 1, so that the total amount of this collection at source will be about $3 a year.

That isn't much to pay, and perhaps the treasurer might be forgiven for a feeling of secret joy over the scanty reward to the government for the trouble to which he had been put, but when he did a little thinking and figuring he got real peevish about it.

In the first place he had to fill out and swear to Form 1012 in duplicate, which meant a double notary fee, $1. A month later, when he forwarded a belated certificate, he learned to his disgust that he was expected to file Form 1012 again, and that it must be sworn to in duplicate as before, although there was nothing to state on the form but "No coupons received." In short, it appears under the regulations adopted by the treasury department that the treasurer of this little company must make twelve reports on Form 1012, each in duplicate, during the year, with a final annual report on Form 1013, which merely summarizes all the monthly reports. So that for the privilege of paying the government a tax of $3 the company must pay $13 a year in notary fees, to say nothing of the time and labor involved in examining and listing certificates, etc.

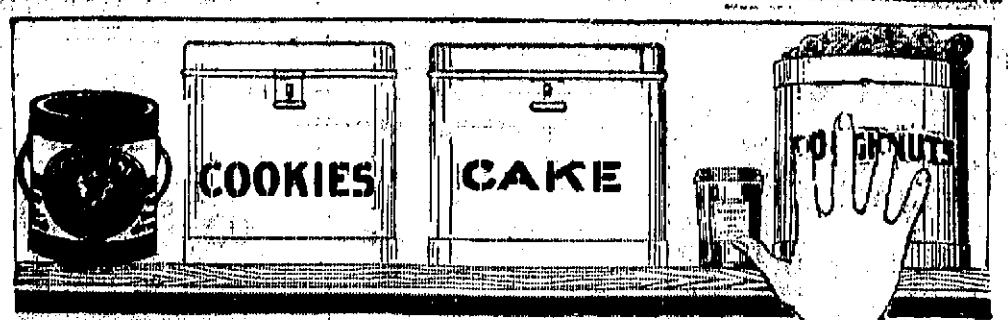

Incidentally, the treasurer must also hand over to the collector all the certificates, whether "exempt" or not, though the law is clear in stating that all "withholders" of the tax at the source shall make a return "of the portion of the income of each person from which the normal tax has been thus withheld." For the present the treasury department graciously permits the exempt certificates to be turned over without requiring them to be listed on any form, but it would be pitifully careless for any treasurer to fail to keep a complete list nevertheless.

As all the above matters were taken up direct with the commissioner at Washington, and attention was called to the illegality of the requirement to make monthly reports when the law only requires an annual, and the requirement to file exempt certificates when the law requires returns only for incomes on which the tax is "withheld," there can be no question of confusion on the part of collectors nor of misunderstanding on the part of the treasury department. It is just a plain case of the government trying to distribute the burden of its work over the year at the expense of the corporations, and incidentally ascertaining where all corporate bonds are held. To be sure, the latter information is useless at the present time, but it might come in very handy when the next step in income taxation is taken, that is, cutting down the limit of exemption.

The Sun's article lays a good deal of stress on the heavy work and expense inflicted on large and wealthy corporations. Granted. But I think the treasurer of the small country corporation needs your sympathy and powerful aid a sight more. The actual money cost in his case may be comparatively small, but he must do all the work and carry all the worry and responsibility alone.—New York Sun.

—the shortening that makes food so wholesome that little children can eat even doughnuts, made with Cottolene. Foods fried in it are deliciously browned and EASILY digested. You'll NOTICE the difference—just try Cottolene.

OLD-FASHIONED PLAIN DOUGHNUTS

2 cups flour, 2 even teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon Cottolene, sweet milk. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together into mixing bowl. Rub in Cottolene with a knife and stir in milk to make a dough as soft as can be handled (about 2-3 of a cup). Tip out on floured board, roll into a strip 3 inches wide and 1-2 inch thick. Cut off strips 3-4 inch wide, roll them out long, twist and fry to a light brown in deep Cottolene. This makes 18 doughnuts especially good for eating with syrup.

Send for HOME HELPS, the cook book that tells all about cooking the Cottolene way. It's FREE—for a postal.

THE M. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY
CHICAGO

In school work, the child knows that one very important part of the missionary is to play the part of matchmaker to his flock. But few if any have heard of the conditions being reversed and the flock turning matchmaker for their missionary.

That does occur however, as the letter written by a missionary who lives at Tuticorin, South India, tells:

On New Year's Day, 1914 as I was seated in my little mud cottage at Tuticorin, a number of people entered the veranda and ceremoniously came into my room, bearing trays of flowers, fruits, raisins, and sugar, which they placed at my feet like supplicants who desire to gain the hearing of a petition. After all due ceremonial etiquette had been observed and I had indicated my willingness to hear their petition, Brother Gunga Draxlam, a prominent lawyer in Tuticorin, began reading in Tamil an address to which the others gave strict attention. It ran like this:

"Reverend sir—You have now for two years bestowed great care and labor upon us, ministering to our spiritual welfare and striving for the health of our souls to such an extent that you have greatly impaired your own physical health and we feel that you need some one to care for you since you do not care for yourself. We fear lest your zeal in our behalf may deprive us at once of your life and service. Therefore with profound humility and sincere respect, we venture to request you to marry a good woman who will both cure for you and help us."

This was naturally a confusing thing to happen; but I was bound to respond to such an eloquent appeal, and when the applause died away I rose and answered with considerable effort.

"Your affectionate regard for my welfare is so overwhelming that I have no words in which to express my appreciation," and sat down, quite faint from the exertion. But the novelty of the situation overcame my fatigue, and turning to one of the others I asked if they had any particular person in mind as one who would be willing to become my helpmate, and be equal to all the responsibilities they had outlined. Immediately Miss W.'s name was mentioned. "But said I, 'I don't believe she would have me.' This seemed to me like matchmaking with a vengeance. What a high minded act to be sure! To order their pastor to marry, and then to choose the girl besides! But the worst was still to come. 'We have already seen her and told her she must have you,' said Brother Rajappan.

So it was settled. I may add that my wife and I have reason to approve highly of the Indian methods of match making; but it should be combined with the western methods of courting as in our case, to secure the best results.—Youth's Companion.

Was Even More Upset.

"I can't understand how you have the presumption to think I would permit my daughter to become your wife." "It does seem rather surprising, I suppose; but cheer up. You're not half so badly upset as I was when she suggested it to me."

METHODIST CHURCH PLANS

The Coming Year to Be a Busy One.

Rev. Mr. Gaither Asked to Continue.

There was a large attendance of official members at the fourth quarterly conference of the First Methodist Church, last evening, in the study.

Plans for the coming session of the New Hampshire Conference, which meets here April 1st to 6th, were discussed, and it developed that arrangements are progressing in a satisfactory manner. This will be a big undertaking for this society to carry through, especially as they are situated now, but they will undoubtedly make a success of the conference arrangements.

A vote of thanks was tendered the church treasurer, G. H. Chadwick, and his associates on the finance committee for their efficient work the past year.

It was unanimously voted to be the opinion of the Fourth Quarterly conference that the best interests of the Church requires the return of the present pastor, Rev. Lyle L. Today is a day to laugh. "Baffles, the Gentleman Burglar," a two reel Keystone comedy, is one of the best we have ever shown. You have enjoyed the Keystone's before. This one is the best. "The Power of Innocence," is a three reel drama which depicts the love of even the lowest, making the heart beat faster as each scene shows its irresistible power. "For His Master," is another two reel feature, showing the good work of the church. Just think of it, three big features in one show. With this comes "The Colonel's Adopted Daughter," a southern story, and the always interesting and instructive "Mutual Weekly."

Then too, Miss Belle Barron is singing "Dreams of Long Ago," that pretty song by Miss Perkins. Made quite a hit last night.

Monday comes "The Star of India" featuring Fraunie Fraunholz. This is a four part feature of strange happenings. It is the kind of picture that pleases everybody.

This is the fourth of "Chronicles of Cleet" series. The father refuses his son money. A valuable necklace disappears; this makes it look bad for the son. Ben Wilson featured.

"A Desperate Chance"—Lubin Drama
A very interesting dramatic story concerning a drunken, worthless husband, with a sick wife.

ACT—Bob MacDonald, Scotch Comedian.

"Broncho Billy's Bible"—Essanay Drama.

In holding up a stage coach with a pair of his, he finds a Bible. What the good book does for Billy is very interesting and surprising.

NOTE:—This picture was released by public demand, and it was in this same picture that Mr. G. M. Anderson came near losing his life by a misstep on a cliff three years ago; but fortunately he grabbed a tree growing out of the mountain side. Shown in this picture.

ACT—Four Flying Valentines. European Novelty Aerialist.

"The Beautiful Leading Lady"—Edison Comedy.

He acts as leading man with her. But the audience showers vegetables upon them.

WITH MUSIC AND GAMES

Little Miss Doris Asheworth Entertains Young Friends on Her Birthday.

Miss Doris Asheworth, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Asheworth, entertained her young friends at her home on Lincoln avenue, on Thursday afternoon, the occasion being the fifth anniversary of her birth.

Games and music were enjoyed and the children sang little folk songs in unison, which afforded them much pleasure. Every game dear to the hearts of little tots was indulged in and one merry and jolly afternoon flew by before they could realize it.

The dining room was prettily and deftly arranged, and the table with the pretty birthday cake, illuminated with five tapers made the centerpiece. The luncheon consisted of sandwiches, ices, cakes, fancy crackers and candies. The youthful hostess was the recipient of many pretty gifts and bouquets of flowers. It was long after 6 o'clock when the little tots reluctantly dispersed for their homes.

Among those present were: Ruth Brown, Maude Waaser, Robbie Waaser, Florence Noel, Gertrude Dyer, Josephine Lilley, Jack Richardson, Virginia Peterson, Margorie Gaither, Harvey Gaither, William Corbin, Maurice Lenny, Jacqueline Lenny, Irma Rinz, Marion Brooks and Evelyn Grace.

THOSE TOLL BRIDGES

No Time Should Be Lost In Freeing Them.

SOME MORE FACTS

There is no lessening of interest in the matter of freeing the toll bridges that have kept Portsmouth behind in progress. The Herald's transporter bridge idea is a live topic of consideration wherever there is any gathering of men. The Herald expects to be able to publish a statement of the probable expense in a few days and just how the plans could be worked out. The officials of the Atlantic Shore Railway are much interested in the matter.

Many people have asked this question: What would be the attitude of the Boston & Maine railroad? The Herald can say from the highest authority that the railroad would not oppose it. It can also state that the Boston & Maine will sell the present Portsmouth bridge to any proper person for the purpose of making it a free bridge.

Our county commissioners now have the necessary law and no time should be spared to relieve Portsmouth of her greatest draw back.
